Outreach

SWE San Diego promotes awareness of engineering to local students through our K-12 Outreach Programs. Our volunteers interact with young women to give them better idea of what engineers are like while allowing students to experience first-hand what engineering is really about. Become a role model and inspire the next generation of engineers by volunteering for one of our K-12 Outreach programs!

In addition to these committees, you can help out throughout the year with opportunities such as Scholarship and Section Award judging. The SWE-SD newsletter is a great way to find out about seasonal committees or volunteer opportunities throughout the year which require less commitment

The San Diego County Section (SWE-San Diego) was chartered in 1982 and is now one of the largest SWE sections in the country. Its programs and publications have won national acclaim, while its growth and dynamic leaders have won national attention.

SWE-San Diego is managed by an elected, volunteer Executive Council, responsible for ensuring the financial and professional well-being of the Section. Officers and committee chairs work together to set and accomplish local goals of growth and visibility, while contributing to the Society's strategic plan.

The members of SWE-San Diego come from diverse areas such as government, defense, research, consulting and manufacturing. Whichever field of engineering you are in, you will find like-minded members!

SWE-San Diego has gained recognition from many employers that our programs are worth supporting. The large involvement by women engineers sends a message to corporations that SWE's goals are important.
